

Questing your topic

I have chosen the topic of Automation in your life. I have combined the topics of Travel without drivers and automation in education. I specifically embarked on this topic as I work in the automation field. My day-to-day work is to eliminate human intervention in any corporate function.

Human processes take time, efficiency, and money out of the system. Automation helps you get back the lost times and efficiencies. Automation is a part of our lives regardless of our needs, wants, or asks.

I want my readers to understand that automation has been here since the inception of humanity, we should not be worried about losing our jobs to automation, as we [humans] always find ways to outsmart the automation
